Using the IRA Clean Air Act Grant, the Department will research/test technologies for use in inspecting both Conventional and Unconventional Natural Gas facilities as well as other potential sources of methane (landfills, coal mining, etc.). Pennsylvania has over 14,000 active unconventional wells sites and over 80,000 active conventional well sites. The Department will select and purchase at least ten instruments to be used in regional offices by air quality inspectors and oil & gas staff in inspections of sources with potential methane emissions. The results of inspections using specific types of equipment will be documented in terms of leaking/non-leaking and, if found to be leaking, a quantifying reading will be taken and documented. The overall goal of the project being to build up a dataset regarding likelihood of emissions from equipment found at each type of inspection.

The Department will follow federal agency solicitation guidelines for projects that support and/or create model state, tribal, local, and territorial government activities that lead to measurable environmental or public health results in communities disproportionately burdened by environmental harms and risks. These projects will help transform disadvantaged and underserved communities into healthy, thriving communities capable of addressing the environmental and public health challenges they have historically faced, as well as current and future challenges.

18. Grant description and results (give purpose of grant and describe key program activities and expected results in terms of a major program measure).

Using the IRA Clean Air Act Grant, the Department will research/test technologies for use in inspecting both Conventional and Unconventional Natural Gas facilities as well as other potential sources of methane (landfills, coal mining, etc.). Pennsylvania has over 14,000 active unconventional wells sites and over 80,000 active conventional well sites. The Department will select and purchase at least ten instruments to be used in regional offices by air quality inspectors and oil & gas staff in inspections of sources with potential methane emissions. The results of inspections using specific types of equipment will be documented in terms of leaking/non-leaking and, if found to be leaking, a quantifying reading will be taken and documented. The overall goal of the project being to build up a dataset regarding likelihood of emissions from equipment found at each type of inspection.

Using the IRA Clean Air Act - Air Monitoring Modernization grant, the Department will upgrade to electric service at each of PA DEP's air monitoring sites as well as deployment of four new sites across the Commonwealth to monitor PM 2.5 and ozone in Pennsylvania's more rural areas.

Using IRA Clean Ports Program: Zero-Emission Technology Deployment Competition ('Clean Ports') Grant funds, the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) is awarding PSA Penn Terminals ('PSA' - Delaware County) with a Clean Ports subaward grant for the replacement of aging, high-polluting, diesel-powered port cargo handling equipment with zero-emission equipment. Specifically, PSA is receiving funding to reduce diesel emissions at their facility by installing (3) grid-electric powered rubber-tired gantry cranes, (840) 440-volt electric plugs for refrigerated cargo containers ('reefers'), and (24) electric reefer racks. After completion, this project will significantly reduce air pollution from port cargo handling activities and improve air quality for the EJ communities and high-pollution areas located around the Penn Terminals, and will set an example for other port operators in Pennsylvania to follow.

Funds will likely be available to assist with Energy Program Office (EPO) planning, specifically in the power generation and transmission markets, and to help EPO align its regulatory function with new business development and capital investments in the clean energy market.

DEP will use the Methane Emissions Reduction Program Grant monies to plug Marginal Conventional Oil and Gas wells (MCWs) throughout the Commonwealth. The funding will also be used to address other related activities such as measuring and reducing emissions of methane and gases associated with MCWs, measuring and reducing contamination of surface waters and groundwater affected by MCWs, identifying and addressing impacts of MCWs on disadvantaged communities Environmental Justice communities, remediating soils and restoring native species impacted by MCWs, developing IT tools to track the data that is collected and milestones that are accomplished.

The Training for Residential Energy Contractors (TREC) programs, both formula and competitive grants, will provide States the ability to develop and implement a state workforce energy program that prepares workers to deliver energy efficiency, electrification, and clean energy improvements, including those covered under the Home Efficiency Rebate and the Home Electrification and Appliance Rebate Programs (HEAR). TREC was established by Section 50123 of the Inflation Reduction Act (IRA). The goals of the program are to: reduce the cost of training contractor employees, provide testing and certification of contractors, and partner with nonprofit organizations to develop and implement a State sponsored workforce program that trains a diverse set of workers to deliver the influx of new federally-funded energy efficiency and electrification programs.

The PA DEP Coastal Resources Management Program (CRMP) will utilize this Inflation Reduction Act (IRA) non-competitive funding to implement resilience initiatives for coastal communities along the Lake Erie shoreline. CRMP will contract with a University to update the way the program engages with local Lake Erie municipalities regarding municipal bluff setback building codes. CRMP currently uses a 2004 study as the basis for Pennsylvania's municipal setbacks under Title 25 Chapter 85 regulations. This study will modernize the strategy and methodology CRMP uses to monitor bluff recession along Lake Erie to benefit the coastal communities in Pennsylvania.

With funding from the TSED Program, EPO will deploy and catalyze a local energy democratization and resilience pilot project by developing and implementing agricultural microgrids that benefit the agricultural and food processing operations negatively impacted by a 500 kV transmission line project in York County. As part of EPO's proposed Agriculture Microgrid Pilot Program (AMPP), EPO will implement microgrid technology while focusing on educating and sharing results with industry, regulatory, and policy partners throughout Pennsylvania. EPO staff have collaborated with Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, and PJM Interconnection to execute this concept..

18. Grant description and results (give purpose of grant and describe key program activities and expected results in terms of a major program measure).

The Department will follow federal agency solicitation guidelines to provide financial assistance to demonstrate innovative approaches to transmission, storage, and distribution infrastructure to harden and enhance resilience and reliability; and to demonstrate new approaches to enhance regional grid resilience.

The Grid Resilience and Innovative Partnerships (GRIP) program proposes an innovative, strategic collaboration and financing model for grid modernization in PA, a region facing increased reliance and adoption of modern technologies such as advanced metering infrastructure (AMI), distributed energy resources (DERs), electric vehicles (EVs), edge computing, artificial intelligence (AI), and other internet-of-things (IoT) applications. The proposed project will be a formula grant program for EDCs to deploy information and communications technology (ICT) systems to support the grid. These systems will provide critical, secure communication capabilities to enable situational awareness to the grid's edge, improve interconnection times while reducing the backlog, and optimize the grid to support the clean energy transition, improve system reliability, and enhance resilience efforts in the face of extreme weather events.

Pennsylvania has developed five provisional objectives that address electricity grid resilience, human and environmental health, equity, and strong labor standards. These objectives and corresponding metrics were developed with the assistance of interested stakeholders who provided feedback prior to and during the August 31 public meeting. The objectives identified for the Pennsylvania 40101(d) program "Preventing Outages and Enhancing the Resilience of the Electric Grid" grant are based on the program goal, which is to "Support projects that will substantially improve grid resiliency for communities, including physical upgrades to critical electrical grid infrastructure, and deliver environmental, health, and economic benefits to Pennsylvanians in low-income and vulnerable communities in both rural and urban areas statewide."

The DEP Vector Management Program will maintain uninterrupted testing and reporting of disease through the tick season. These results will be reported to Department of Health on a monthly basis and will be available to the Center for Disease Control. The DEP Vector Management Program anticipates processing over 8,000 tick samples annually.

18. Grant description and results (give purpose of grant and describe key program activities and expected results in terms of a major program measure).

There are over 1.3 million underground tanks in the U.S. that contain petroleum. It has been estimated that thousands of these tanks are currently leaking, with many more expected to leak as they reach the end of their tank life within the next ten years. In October 1986, Congress amended Subtitle I of the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act to provide a Federal Trust Fund to finance the cleanup of petroleum releases from underground storage tanks. The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) intends to make available Trust Fund monies through cooperative agreements with States having acceptable plans for using fund resources. The cooperative agreement is an assistance instrument which establishes the respective responsibilities of an individual state for implementation, and EPA for both oversight and technical assistance under the Trust Fund corrective action program. High priority for corrective actions is to be given to (1) releases which pose the greatest threat to human health and the environment, and (2) sites where the state cannot identify a solvent owner or operator of the tank who will undertake action properly.
