To whom it may concern,

- The PA DEP must provide additional clarity regarding the pre-remedial investigations that are still required.
- Additional evaluations are needed which will have a significant impact on the remedial design and outcome.
- Some of the topics requiring additional data include, the evaluation of emerging contaminants including PFAS compounds, delineation of soils to residential standards, and completion of horizontal and vertical delineation of groundwater impacts, particularly with respect to deep bedrock.
- The DEP must make sure that the public has the opportunity for input into remedial decisions as additional information becomes available.
